

Meritxell Pérez Ramírez

She holds a PhD in Psychology from the University of Barcelona and a degree in Criminology from the Faculty of Law of the same university. She has a Master's Degree in Cognitive-social Therapy, as well as an expert in Multivariate Statistical Techniques. She is a researcher and General Secretary of the Foundation for Applied Research in Crime and Security (FIADYS). She is currently the principal investigator of the study on the Criminological Profile of Hate Criminals, commissioned by the General Secretariat of Penitentiary Institutions, and of the Analysis of Femicides in Castilla La Mancha to Improve the Protection of Victims, subsidized by the Institute for Women of Castilla-La Mancha. She is a Collaborating Professor of the Degree in Social Work and Criminology at the Pontifical University of Comillas. She has been a professor of Criminology at the European University of Madrid, teaching different subjects such as: Prevention and Treatment of Crime, Gender Violence and Criminal Psychology. He currently collaborates with other university extension courses and master's degrees in the field of forensic sciences.

Research Lines

Gender violence, sexual violence, treatment of offenders, risk prediction, validation of criminological theoretical models, hate crimes.